

Danderine

GROWS HAIR
and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon in plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 2-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

WHITE MOST LIKED

THE POPULAR COLOR FOR THE LIVING ROOMS.

No Other Shade as Effective in Imparting That Dainty Look So Desirable—Patches of Vivid Color Also Used.

White rooms grow more and more in public favor. In referring to them it must be remembered that the white room is not actually new; it is a revival of a distant period. White prevails in most of the fine old houses in London, and one need but recall some of the gems from the date of the brothers Adam to wonder why the restful, serene, and dignified white room was ever abandoned in favor of a mass of scrolls and indefinite indications of flowers, plants, animals and other horrors. Walls of faint heliotrope, a carpet of deep purple, and a couch and chairs covered in Parma linen, constitute a peaceful room that supplies a good background.

More and more do we make our rooms a background for fine pictures, rare tapestries, pieces of silver, copper, brass, or china, and for the women who inhabit them. Innate in every one of us there is a love of color, and a few educated decorators urge its free use. They argue that a dash of scarlet, glowing rose du harri, radiant blue, and so on have a good effect on our spirits. Panels of linen are sometimes introduced, fixed on with bands of metal galon. In such cases curtains of the same material in a contrast, would be similarly outlined with metal, which leads to weight them.

Not only in our houses is this keynote of simplicity demanded. Fashion designers are dependent on line, and the same inclination prevails to make a quiet and unobtrusive background serve to throw out some massing of bold color. Taste expresses itself in the fabrics themselves, in the introduction of fine material. Exquisite designing characterizes even the braids, tassels, and other little fastenings, that serve to enhance the good effect of our garments.

The fact that pictures from the studies of artists do not sell so readily as they used to do is often deplored. It might be suggested that while the few can hope to possess masterpieces, the more widely diffused tendency to select for personal use and for household purposes the work of educated and skilled craftsmen opens up a wide field for people of artistic taste.

BLOUSE OF PONGEE.

This model is made of pongee; it is tucked all over in fine tucks and trimmed with fagoted bands of the material and straps of soutache and tiny buttons.

The long sleeves are tucked crosswise on the outside only and are trimmed at the bottom to correspond with the rest of the waist. The tucked gimpes is of linen or muslin, the collar trimmed with the soutache and buttons.

Fur Hats Still Popular.

Fur hats are, of course, still to be seen, but the latest idea for winter chapeaux is to have them of suede, kid or tweed; this last is somewhat commonplace, but the two first are very smart.

They are like the Panama in shape, and are stitched all over in lines, while the trimming is simple, being merely a cord and tassels, or a swathing of kid on suede, or vice-versa round the crown.

Crocodile skin may have a velvet band and buckle severely plain, and only by the long, sweeping lines of their shape do they assert their femininity.

Odd Gold Chains.

Long chains are a feature of street dressing. They are worn outside of the coat as a frame to the frill. They swing down to the waist, where the watch is dropped into an inside coat pocket.

Every girl is trying to get as large a chain as she can, provided it is gold or silver. The jeweled ones are kept for the evening. The one most desired is a chain made of the tiny gold watch plates from the inside of Geneva watches. The jewelers make them now for these chains and not for watches, and a string of them is quite effective.

COSTUME OF BROWN CLOTH

Effective Design Just Now Popular Among English Women of Fashion.

Cigar brown cloth is chosen for this costume, that has a plain, well gored skirt cut walking length. The coat has a plastron taken from shoulders to end of coat; it is cut wider near the lower part, where it is handsome.

ly braided, the other part only being edged with the braid arranged in small scrolls; the braiding on the cuff matches that on lower part of coat. Black satin forms the revers.

Hat of soft felt turned up at the side and trimmed with wings and a buckle.

Materials required: Seven yards cloth 48 inches wide, 1/4 yard satin, three buttons, three dozen yards braid, six yards silk for coat lining.

DESIGNS FOR THE STOCKINGS

Fashion's Whim Is to Have Them Gayly Bedecked with Various Flowers.

Girls who are clever at embroidering can make most beautiful birthday gifts for their friends by ornamenting plain silk stockings. Every girl likes to have pretty silk stockings for dancing and other parties, and the fashion this winter is to have them gayly bedecked with flowers. Fascinating vines trail from the toe up over the arch of the foot or little clusters of tiny flowers are dotted on here and there. They are gay in color, for the flowers are worked in bright shades, while leaves done in vivid greens always accompany them. The trailing arbutus makes a lovely decoration on white silk stockings intended to wear with a pink frock, and nothing could be prettier than clusters of forget-me-nots on pale blue or white stockings to be worn with a blue gown. A great deal of imagination and taste can be brought into play in designing the embroidery for stockings, which may be elaborate or simple, according to the skill of the girl intending to work them.

Ribbons Simplify Coiffure.

Black velvet ribbon is described as the plain evening hair ornament of a young girl, and it is quite in keeping with the tendency to simplify the coiffure. It is asserted, too, that the half-wreath of tiny artificial rosebuds has come in with the quaint fashions of France.

The plait arranged as a coronet is a last fashion, and a relief after the roll-filled pompadour, which has been "an unconscionable time a-dying." We are assured even now that the absence of pompadour "is not obligatory," and the inference is that we can't and won't live without it.

It is, to be serious, disappointing to the extent that rolls are no longer in good style and that perked hair is on the increase.

A Popular Jabot.

Probably the most popular jabot of the moment is the "one-sided," as it is called. It fills the open space above the spot where the average coat is closed, yet is not fussy.

A new idea in one-sided effects is a cascade of net edged with narrow Cluny lace, while a strip of Cluny insertion is placed under one edge of the cascade and caught to it.

Another novelty is a jabot in cascade effect as far as the bust line. From there it extends to a double frill at the belt. At the top it is finished with a net bow.

Yet another is a net frill edged with lace and sewed to a strip of insertion.

Draped Waist Line.

It is a season of sashes. True, they are attached to the skirt instead of being separated from it, but the effect is the same. The waist line is draped. It is done in the high waisted skirt as a means of finishing the sharp edge. It is done with the tunic and also with the separate bodice. One rarely sees the waist line without folds around it. And there is always a buckle somewhere with long lash ends that hang straight or cross the figure and tie on the opposite side.

MUCH IN LITTLE.

Stam's imports of electrical supplies have trembled in five years.

Half of the world's production of nickel comes from the United States.

The public debt of Germany is now $113,837,500, made up mostly of 3 and 3 1/2 per cent bonds.

Gas lighting has recently been boomed in Japan, and some ten new companies are to be floated.

Ekatrinoslav is one of the largest and most progressive industrial centers in Southern Russia, and has a population of 200,000.

In a series of telephonic experiments, a German scientist has made magnets, alternating current transformers, and even dynamos talk with membranes.

Examining the map of Russia, with the figures at hand, it is found that the greatest falling off in flax culture is in those provinces that formerly produced the largest quantities of good flax fiber for exportation.

The Buffalo board of education is considering a proposition to introduce in the public schools a text-book on Buffalo which will give pupils some knowledge of the industries and institutions of the city in which they live.
